

Conference on Camera:

Top left, an exterior view of Harrogate International Centre, venue for this year's British Pharmaceutical Conference. Top right, the Royal Pharmaceutical Society's stand at the conference exhibition. Bottom left, the President of the Royal Pharmaceutical Society, Dr Gill Hawksworth, right, presents the 2003 Synergy award (which recognises a non-pharmacist who has made a significant contribution to the development of the profession) to Professor Lindsey Davies (regional director for public health, East Midlands) who led the "Getting Research evidence Into Pharmacy Practice" (GRIPP) working party. Centre right, at a reception before the conference dinner on 15 September, left to right, Joyce Kierney (Kierney Consultants), Gautam Paul (secretary, British Pharmaceutical Students Association), Noel Wicks (member of the Royal Pharmaceutical Society's Council), Elizabeth Doran (president, BPSA), David Thomson (chairman of the Society's Scottish Executive), the Society's President (Dr Gill Hawksworth) and Irene Gummerson (community pharmacist and chairman of the Society's Yorkshire region). Bottom right, a general view of the conference dinner

Harrogate, 2003

Top left, Anil Kumar Vangara (Aston University school of pharmacy), left, discusses his research with a visitor to the science poster display. Top right, at the exhibition stand of the Biosurgical Research Unit (part of the Surgical Materials Testing Laboratory in Bridgend, Glamorgan), Clare McIver shows some of the sterile maggots bred by the unit for use in wound care. Centre left, at the pre-dinner reception, left to right, Brian Godfrey (deputy chief pharmacist, University Hospitals of Leicester NHS Trust), Professor Liz Kay (director of pharmacy services, Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust) and Dr Bob Calvert (consultant in medicines management, North and East Yorkshire and North Lincolnshire Strategic Health Authority). Bottom left, also at the pre-dinner reception, left to right, Stephen Pemberton (regional professional development manager, Boots The Chemists), Digby Emson (pharmacy superintendent, Boots The Chemists, and a member of the Society's Council) and Phillip Yelling (chairman, Boots Pharmacists Association). Bottom right, at the pre-dinner reception, Sanjay Desai (pharmacy care project manager, Reading Primary Care Trust) and Swati Patel (teacher-practitioner, Tesco)